

House Refuses Election Costs

HARRISBURG (AP) — The House voted down Monday a proposal that the state pay one-half the cost of the special congressional election July 30 in the 15th Congressional District.

State Rep. John F. Bonner, D-Carbon, submitted the proposal as a rider to a minor election bill before the House. The rider was voted down, 105-83.

One Republican, Rep. Ralph A. Marsh, Clearfield, voted for it and one Democrat, John Walsh, Allegheny, opposed it. Otherwise, the roll call followed straight party lines, with Republicans in the majority.

State Rep. Jeanette F. Reibman, D-Northampton, said estimates have been made that the special election will cost the four counties $50,000, with her own county paying $25,000. Northampton is the most populous county in the district.

The other three counties are Carbon, Monroe and Pike.

The election is to fill a vacancy created by the death of U. S. Rep. Francis E. Walter, dean of the state's Democratic delegation in Congress.

Mitchell Joins John Birchers

NEWBURGH, N.Y. (AP)—City Manager Joseph Mitchell, whose controversial welfare plan attracted national attention, said Monday he is resigning to accept a job with the John Birch Society.

Mitchell said he would submit his resignation to the City Council, effective Oct. 12, in order to assume a post with the ultra-conservative Birch Society involving organizational work on the East Coast.

Mitchell's welfare changes were aimed at relief recipients, some of whom he contended were chiselers, particularly unwed mothers who have more than one child.

He was again swept to national attention early this year when he was indicted on charges of bribery in connection with rezoning in Newburgh.

Mitchell was tried and acquitted by a jury April 23 and returned to his city job, from which he had voluntarily absented himself before and during the trial.

During the trial on charges he had played a part in a $20,000 shakedown, Mitchell maintained his innocence and said he was a victim of persons who objected to his political opinions.

Civil Rights Action Pressed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate and House committees pressed ahead with civil rights legislation Monday in the face of a growing railroad strike threat that might disrupt congressional timetables.

The Senate Commerce Committee announced a full schedule of hearings for the rest of this week and the early part of next week on the administration's public accommodations bill, which would outlaw racial discrimination in stores, restaurants, hotels and other private business places.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Burke Marshall, head of the Justice Department's civil rights division, told Monday's session that "This problem is very urgent."

Marshall said: "The heat, the frequency and the tempo" of demonstrations against racial segregation have stepped up considerably since mid-May.

Transportation Aid Opposed

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Pennsylvania Council of Churches representing 17 Protestant denominations, opposed Monday legislation that would provide state aid for parochial school transportation.

"We believe that the state and federal government should continue to accord freedom to religious bodies to carry on their own schools, but those who establish and provide full support for those schools and not expect to receive subsidies or special privileges from public authorities," the council said in a letter to the House Education Committee.

Two bills before the Education Committee would allow parochial school students to use public school bus transportation.

Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — Worry over rail labor troubles which could lead either to a nationwide strike or to government intervention overhung Wall Street Monday and the market took another steep loss.

Volume was 3.29 million compared with 2.92 million shares in the Friday, post-holiday session, the lightest day in half a year.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 5.79 to 710.66.

Kennedy Attempts 'Last Ditch' Rail Settlement

Schoonover 'Hostile'

Witness Surprises Shanley Prosecution

SCRANTON — Stroudsburg banker Gerald D. Shanley Jr. went on trial in U. S. District Court here Monday charged with various irregularities in connection with his stewardship as commanding officer of Co. A, 109th Inf., Pennsylvania National Guard in 1959 and 1960.

The 42-year-old Shanley, a former resident of Scranton, is vice president of the First Stroudsburg National Bank. He is no longer with the National Guard. He resides with his family in Stroudsburg.

A jury of six men and six women is hearing testimony with Chief Federal Judge Michael H. Sheridan presiding. Indications are that the case will be completed before the week's end.

Because of the intense heat in the courtroom, particularly during the afternoon hours, one session will be held Tuesday from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m.

Former Asst. U. S. Atty. Edwin Michael Kosik of Scranton is defending Shanley.

Asst. U. S. Attorneys Carlton M. O'Malley Jr. and Julius Altman are presenting the government case.

Highlighting Monday's opening testimony was the appearance of former Maj. Robert Schoonover of East Stroudsburg as a government witness. The government pleaded surprise during his testimony and examined Schoonover as a hostile witness.

Expectations are that Vincent Marek Jr. of Tannersville, former first sergeant of Co. A, will be a government witness today.

Nolo Contendere
Marek has entered a nolo contendere plea to a variety of charges involving irregularities involving checks of Co. A, with headquarters in East Stroudsburg. He will be sentenced later.

Schoonover was convicted by a federal jury here in March on charges of using the mails to defraud and uttering two checks made out to National Guardsmen. Schoonover has appealed his conviction and is free on bail. A date for arguments for a new trial will be set after the testimony is transcribed.

Grand Jury Indicts Mayor Of Reading

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Mayor John C. Kubacki of Reading, Pennsylvania's sixth largest city, was indicted by a federal grand jury Monday on charges of extorting $10,500—perhaps more—from companies selling parking meters.

The grand jury indicted along with him Abraham Minker, about 65, a convicted gambling figure in Reading and elsewhere, who is serving a four-year prison term in the federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa. He began serving his sentence last May.

Kubacki, 51, a one-time Bucknell University football star, is the second public official in Reading indicted this year. Last May, Police Chief Charles S. Wade was indicted on perjury charges.

In Reading, Kubacki told newsmen: "I don't know anything about it. What can I say?"

After he was indicted Wade had

Van Buskerk, of East Stroudsburg, testified he did not receive or endorse a check issued in his name and forwarded by mail to Tannersville.

Miller, of Bangor RD 2, also testified he never received or endorsed a check for $42.67 made out in his name and mailed to "in care of R. L. Rugg." Says Stroudsburg RD 3, said he never saw or endorsed a draft made out to him.

Jumper, a Cresco resident, testified along the same line as Cays as to one check, but it has been determined it was his complaint that may have triggered the investigation into Co. A irregularities.

Jumper said he complained when he did not receive a check and went as far as the finance office at Indiantown Gap.

Later, he testified, he complained to Capt. Shanley, who then referred him to First Sergeant Marek, who in turn told him to see the company clerk.

Rugg, a former platoon leader, testified he was asked by Marek to accept a Miller check. After it arrived by mail, Rugg said he took it and placed it on the desk of first sergeant Marek.

Asks For Statement
Atty. Kosik asked to see a statement Rugg gave federal investigators. It was furnished by Atty. O'Malley. It was read by Kosik and Shanley and returned to government counsel without comment.

Jenkinson said he was asked to accept the Jumper check, mailed to his home in connection with a statement of charges involving lost equipment on the part of the National Guardsman.

Asked if he thought what he did was proper, Jenkinson replied: "The way regulations were changing in the Army, nothing surprised me." He said he gave the check to Marek.

Schoonover's call to the witness chair touched off much activity. Atty. Kosik asked for an offer, at sidebar, as to what the witness would testify.

Schoonover proved a difficult witness from the government's standpoint, and Atty. O'Malley pleaded surprise and asked for the right to cross-examine his own witness.

A lengthy sidebar then followed and Atty. O'Malley proceeded to use Schoonover's testimony as elicited from a grand jury last January, a panel which indicted Schoonover and others.

The government's move in pleading surprise came when Schoonover was testifying as to a conversation he had with then Capt. Shanley in the American House, Stroudsburg, at which the commanding officer signed payroll vouchers.

Schoonover said he remembers vaguely the mention of Tannersville addresses, but no details.

Denies Statement
The witness denied he told a grand jury that the conversation with Shanley was in connection with "too many addresses from Tannersville."

Atty. Kosik called on his vast military knowledge — he is a Lt. Col. in the Army reserve and leaves July 25 for two weeks training in Fort Leavenworth, Kansas — to take Schoonover over various administration company procedures.

Schoonover, under Kosik's questioning, testified of the platoon sergeant determining who was present for drills, of forwarding this information to the first sergeant for the morning report, and of the first sergeant submitting this report to the commanding officer for signature. He also testified others signed Shanley's name to military documents.

An Army advisor certifies payroll vouchers not by an actual physical check, but from information contained on the morning report, Schoonover testified.

The commanding officer, likewise, is guided by the accuracy of the morning report, the court and jury were told.

Jurors hearing testimony are Edward R. Thomas of Scranton, Philip Powell of Scranton, Jackson McKinley of Pottsville, Mrs. Romaine Howells of Blakely and Francis P. Flynn of Wilkes-Barre. Lewis J. Anthony of Jim Thorpe, Clifton A. Arthur of Hazleton, Mrs. Ruth Spencer of Dalton, Mrs. Grace Coleman of Scranton, Mrs. Mary T. Ruch of Plymouth, Mrs. Ruth Fetzner of Scranton, and John Grula of Freeland as alternate.

SEARCH FOR PLANE CRASH VICTIMS—Rescue workers and firemen pick through rubble in search for victims at a day camp near Willow Grove, Pa., Naval Station after a jet fighter plowed into a cluster of buildings where picnickers were spending the day. At least seven persons, four of them children, were killed and 17 others injured. (AP Wirephoto)

Pilot Defends His Actions In Willow Grove Disaster

WILLOW GROVE, Pa. (AP)—A Marine pilot, who ejected himself seconds before his jet crashed killing seven persons and injuring 17, said Monday he left the plane "at the barest minimum possible."

The plane, streaking at an altitude of 300 to 350 feet approaching the Willow Grove Naval Air Station Sunday, plunged in flames onto a nearby picnic ground.

The pilot, 39-year-old Capt. John W. Butler, a Marine Corps reservist from Boiling Springs, Pa., escaped injury when he ejected and tore through the canopy of his cockpit.

Butler, at a news conference, said he would have landed in the same place "even if I had stayed with the plane."

The news conference was called as high-ranking officers started a full scale hearing into the cause of the crash which brought tragedy to a private outing of families and friends.

Butler said he got no response when he tried to level the plane on a routine mission with three other Marine planes.

Butler, accompanied by Lt. Col. Robert Hemstad, accident investigating chief at the Naval Aviation Safety Center, Norfolk, Va., told of the flight, from take-off to crash.

The four planes took off at 3 p.m. on what was described as a ground control intercept mission and continued until reaching 36,000 feet.

That's when trouble developed, Butler said. His aircraft developed electrical trouble, with the radio and various instruments failing. He was able to give hand signals to his section leader in another plane, but he couldn't reach ground control, he said.

He took his plane down to less than 20,000 feet so that a fuel boost pump could operate without bursting into flames. Butler signaled the ground tower on the runway to flash acknowledging red or green lights to see whether his landing gear worked properly.

"They gave me the go-ahead to land," Butler said.

Upon reaching a straightaway position, the craft started to nose-dive, Butler said there was no response when he tried to take the plane to a higher altitude.

"I saw trees coming up—and ejected," Butler related. "I couldn't do anything about it at all. I am satisfied that it was the only thing to do."

He said he had no real problems with the same craft an FJ-4 fighter plane, before.

A veteran of jet flying since 1955, Butler wasn't ready to say whether he'd fly again. "I'll have to wait and see how I feel later," he said.

Hemstad said the cause of the crash has not been resolved by a board of inquiry. It could have been a faulty electrical or hydraulic system, he said. He said his board would take remaining parts of the plane to a laboratory and dismantle them for study.

Scranton Credits Deficit Cut To Austerity

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Scranton said Monday the state ended the 1962-63 fiscal year with a deficit of $14.5 million—some $7 million less than he forecast earlier in the year.

Report of the spending and revenue figures for the year ended July 1 gave the House appropriations committee information it needed before it would clear the administration's general 1963-64 spending program for floor action.

The committee had been holding up the bulk of the governor's budget for the new fiscal year pending the final accounting for the fiscal period just ended.

The governor said the deficit was reduced from the earlier forecasts through the administration's "strict economy program."

Moreover, if the unnecessary additional appropriation of cash to the Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority—if only an authorization to commit the money had been given—this would have reduced the deficit to $6.5 million.

The $4 million in additional PIDA funds was approved by the legislature and signed into law by the governor several months ago.

The deficit occurred mainly because revenue collections fell behind estimates. Collections were $24.4 million behind estimates.

Reduced spending trimmed the margin between expenditures and receipts to the level reported Monday by the governor.

The bulk of the revenue shortage of $24.4 million came in corporation tax collections where the monies were $15.6 million below the estimate of $157 million, the fiscal report showed.

Sales and use tax receipts for the year totaled $401.4 million, some $4 million short of the estimate.

Malt beverage tax collections for the year were off $2.3 million while the realty transfer tax fell $1.6 million below the estimate.

Insurance premiums were $1.5 million off the estimate while bank shares were off by $3.2 million.

The capital stock and franchise tax brought in some $3.6 million more than anticipated.

In his statement, Scranton pledged to continue his austerity program in the new fiscal year which began July 1.

Calls Conference For Early Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy took charge of the stalled railroad work rules talks anew Monday by summoning both sides to the White House Tuesday to search for ways to prevent a strike.

Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary, announced the 10:30 a.m. EDT meeting as an "obviously," last-ditch effort. He noted that it will come less than 48 hours before the deadline of 12:01 a.m. Thursday set by the railroads for putting into effect work rules which the unions say will force them to strike.

The President moved quickly after the problem was turned over to him by Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz at a White House briefing attended by Democratic congressional leaders. Kennedy has said that if bargaining fails he will ask Congress to arm him with authority to force a settlement.

Wirtz summarized for Kennedy the futile efforts made by his department since June 17 to get the railroads and five operating unions to carve out an agreement. At the heart of the dispute is the carriers' attempts — sanctioned by the Supreme Court — to eliminate gradually what they call "featherbedding," or unnecessary jobs.

Kennedy had won agreement June 15 by both sides to try for settlement by July 10. This delayed a strike threat after he had exhausted all other presidential authority to prevent a walkout.

Salinger Refuses Comment
Salinger would not comment on whether the railroads and the unions would be asked again to postpone any action that might bring a strike and try further for agreement or wait until Congress acts. If Kennedy does seek new congressional authority, there was no hope raised that any legislation could be passed in time to prevent a strike if the Thursday deadline holds.

The most hopeful note came from Sen. A. S. Mike Monroney, D-Okla., who said "we can move pretty darn fast" on Capitol Hill to meet an emergency. But even he conceded it would take the Senate about a week to complete hearings on legislation.

Kennedy will meet with J. E. Wolfe, chief negotiator for the railroads, and three other industry representatives along with Presidents of the five unions, Salinger said he would "reserve comment" on anything the President would have to say to them. But he has said a strike tying up the nation's railroads would be intolerable.

Post Office Prepares
In anticipation of a possible strike, Postmaster General J. Edward Day said Monday night first class mail and air mail would continue but all other mail would be restricted.

He said second, third and fourth class mail and parcels would go no further than 150 miles from the post office of origin.

He said parcel post—or fourth class—shipments should use first class mail for any emergency and that perishable goods shipments should be halted immediately.

Members of Congress, for the most part, kept silent about the dispute, saying it would be discreet first to see what Kennedy wants them to do.

Wirtz has mentioned in the past week the possibility of compulsory arbitration, government seizure of the railroads or a combination of both.

Time A Key Factor
The time element is a key factor in Kennedy's decision-making process. The railroads have announced they will put into effect at 12:01 a.m. Thursday work rules which the Supreme Court has held they have the right to impose. The unions say this will mean a strike.

Chairman Oren Harris, D-Ark. of the House Commerce Committee, one of those who attended the White House session, said he can see little hope that a strike can be averted. I Kennedy requests legislation, he said, there is small chance of Congress passing it before the strike deadline.

A similar view was expressed by Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., who told reporters "I couldn't imagine any bill getting through this Congress in less than 45 days unless it was a declaration of war." Perhaps it might be accomplished in 30 days, if there was a strike, he added.

The White House briefing by Wirtz was attended by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, the assistant Senate Democratic leader, and ranking Democratic members of the congressional Labor and Commerce committee.

Also present was Asst. Sec. of Labor James J. Reynolds, who has played the government's key role in the negotiations.

After the session, Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary, said he could not comment on any possible steps the administration is contemplating.

Further Discussion
He said Kennedy plans to discuss the problem further at Tuesday's weekly breakfast meeting with Senate and House Democratic leaders.

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, said no legislation was proposed at the White House, that it was just a meeting to "brief us and bring us up to date on the situation."

Magnuson said the administration still is waiting to see what happens.

Informed congressional sources said that if any legislation is sought it will be tailored to deal specifically with the current railroad crisis and with that only.

Sources on Capitol Hill said consideration is being given, among other things, to a combination measure providing for seizure of the railroads and compulsory arbitration.

The railroad brotherhoods Sunday turned down a government settlement formula because they said it involved compulsory bargaining. They vowed to fight any attempt at passage of legislation which might impose such a provision. The railroads, however, accepted the government proposal.

At the convention of Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, AFL-CIO in St. Louis Monday, the union's president, H. E. Gilbert urged the federal government to "Turn us loose." Then he said, the work rules dispute could be settled in less than 24 hours.

Gilbert blamed the deadlock on what he called the "smug assumption" by the railroads that the federal government would not permit railroad employees to strike.

The threatened strike would hit virtually all the nation's railroads, which have about 700,000 employees and 217,000 miles of right-of-way. A strike could result in near chaos for commuters in many cities, a railroad spokesman said.

Harness Taxes Near $1 Million

HARRISBURG (AP)—The State Revenue Department reported Monday that the first 34 days of pari-mutuel harness racing in Pennsylvania produced $791,962 in taxes.

In 26 days of racing at Liberty Bell track in Philadelphia state taxes totaled $724,063. The Meadows track in Washington County produced $67,889 in eight days of racing.

Total wagering at both tracks has been $13,682,900.

Mental Health Study Planned

HARRISBURG (AP)—The Pennsylvania Department of Public Welfare plans to launch a two-year project to develop a comprehensive study of mental health treatment in the Commonwealth.

The project, announced Saturday by state Welfare Secretary Arlin M. Adams, will be financed by a $400,000 federal grant.

Gov. Scranton will name a mental health advisory planning committee, composed of representatives of governmental, professional, religious and civic organizations.

Adams said the study would concentrate on these goals: —Development of an integrated system of community-based mental health facilities and programs, with special emphasis on community mental health centers.

—Modification of state mental institutions in keeping with the changing role possible for them with advances in treatment and the development of community facilities and programs.

—Detailing of special programs for a reevaluation of mental illness.

—Clarification and coordination of the roles of governmental and non-governmental agencies in the fight against mental illness and retardation.

"This project will be an all-inclusive assessment and evaluation of the mental health need of Pennsylvania," Adams stated.

"With the development of this 'master plan' we will have a complete blueprint for a comprehensive approach to mental illness—one of the major health problems of our times."

Pneumonia Takes Siamese Twin

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Pneumonia on Monday claimed the life of Rose Mary Temoshenko, who was the surviving Siamese twin separated from her sister in an operation 19 days ago.

The sister, Ruth Ann, died June 26 of an infection.

They were at Children's Hospital in Pittsburgh, where they were taken after birth June 7.

Daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John Temoshenko of nearby Tarentum, R.D. 3, they were joined at the abdomen and shared one organ, the liver.

Two teams of doctors separated the girls — dividing the liver between them — in a four-hour operation. At first doctors reported there was hope both would live.

Dr. William B. Kiesewetter, head surgeon at Children's, said the operation itself was a medical rarity. He said Siamese twins joined like this had been successfully separated fewer than five times.

The total number of successful Siamese twin separations is less than 10, he said.

Driver Ban Plan To Be Renewed

HARRISBURG (AP)—Pennsylvania's reciprocity agreement with New Jersey for suspension of drivers' licenses in traffic violations will be renegotiated within the next month.

"We've revised our suspension schedule this month, and I understand New Jersey has made some changes," Harry H. Brainerd, Pennsylvania traffic safety commissioner, said yesterday.

"The problem, if any exists, will be to work out penalties for violations where the suspension schedules of the two states differ."

Morse Denounces GOP Patronage

HARRISBURG (AP)—Democratic state chairman Otis B. Morse says the Scranton administration is beginning to inflict political patronage into Pennsylvania's mental health program.

"Non-political sources are reporting to us that Republican County chairmen are pushing their way into the offices of the superintendents of our mental hospitals to demand the firing of competent personnel and the immediate hiring of Republican party hacks," Morse declared in a statement issued yesterday.

He said he had received reports of specific incidents of political intervention from Allentown, Clarks Summit and Retreat State Hospitals.

Hear Reports From CAS

County Tables Walk-In Freezer Action

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County commissioners yesterday opened a bid from Lawton Huffman Co., Inc. of Marshalls Creek for the construction of a walk-in freezer at the county home. They took no action, but plan to study the bid before any contract is awarded.

Huffman's bid was $2,685. In other business, the commissioners met with officials of Monroe County Children's Aid Society.

Mrs. Horace Butler, president of CAS, and Charles Jones, executive secretary of CAS, reported the case load for the month of June as 143 children.

A breakdown showed seven children were discharged from CAS during the month and that there are 33 active foster homes and nine inactive foster homes.

Also, there are 48 children boarding in foster homes, two in free homes under close agency supervision, two in private boarding foster homes, one in a private boarding home for study, one in an out of county adoption home, five in institutions and one in Hershey School.

The report also showed that there are 68 children in protective homes and that four family counseling and four post placement counseling were held during the month.

Space Provided

The commissioners discussed several questions from members of election boards in the county. One question asked was, "Is there space provided on the permanent voting record cards which are used by the election boards in the county?"

A study of the records showed that there is space provided for special elections and that the space should be used to record the number of the voter ballot when he votes at the special election on July 30.

Heberling Cites Favoritism, Friction On Police Force

STROUDSBURG — William Gaylor Heberling, Stroudsburg patrolman who resigned his $4,000-a-year job last week, cited poor working conditions, favoritism and friction with the police chief and other patrolmen in his letter of resignation.

Full contents of the letter, obtained by the Daily Record, follow:

Unpaid Real Estate Taxes Nearly Triples In Year

STROUDSBURG — Warren Loney, Monroe County treasurer, said yesterday that unpaid real estate taxes returned for 1962 are nearly three times those returned in 1961.

Unpaid real estate taxes returned to the county for collection in 1962 totaled $115,415.65. This compares with $62,491.11 for 1961. The increase is $52,924.54 for the period.

Loney said a tax sale is planned for early in 1964.

A breakdown by township and borough and year is as follows:

The Saturday schedule calls for a business session at 9:30 a.m. and Eugene D. Lavery, public relation consultant from Bell Telephone Co. as the guest speaker.

Lion Dancers Wield Knives

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Two rival groups of lion dancers fought it out with knives and clubs in a dispute over division of donations by spectators at a God Worship festival Sunday.

Before police restored order at the festival in Yunlin County of south Formosa, two dancers were killed and three were injured. Police said four dancers were arrested. Dressed in paper-mache or cloth lion costumes, the dancers perform at festivals for whatever spectators will pay.

Hits Scranton Administration

Rooney Blasts Disabled Vet's Firing

EASTON — State Sen. Fred B. Rooney charged last night that the firing of a disabled veteran of World War II and the Korean conflict from the Lehigh Valley Highway Dept. shed is typical of the "callous, desperate attempts of the Scranton administration to pad the payroll with Republican workers, who will be at the polls instead of on the job on July 30."

Rooney identified the veteran as Joseph A. Horvath of 320 W. Patterson St., Lansford.

Horvath lost his right eye at Inchon in South Korea during the Korean War.

Seen "Ridiculous"

Rooney called the firing "one of the most ridiculous and inhuman moves yet made by an administration which piously immediately of my resignation to the borough of Stroudsburg. Reasons cited for above action are as follows:

a. Poor working conditions. (Unbiased schedule changes).

b. Personal feelings of chief and undersigned.

c. Favoritism shown within the department.

d. Friction between men within the department.

Yours truly,

Gaylord Heberling

Woman, 60, Hospitalized After Crash

FERN RIDGE — A 60-year-old woman is in a guarded condition at the General Hospital of Monroe County following a two-car accident Saturday in McElhenny.

Mrs. Helen Woodring, 60, of 703 Northampton St., Easton, was admitted to the hospital Saturday after a two-car accident in McElhenny.

She suffered fractures of the right leg and left arm, shock and cuts and abrasions of her body.

State Police from Fern Ridge barracks identified the drivers as Donald Woodring, 60, husband of the injured woman, and Raymond Kroeble, 53, of Philadelphia.

They added that the accident occurred in the intersection of Rts. 115 and 209. Woodring was traveling south on Rt. 115 and Kriebel was going north and crossed into Woodring's lane and the two cars crashed head-on in the intersection.

Woodring suffered bruises of the knees, ribs and chest, a cut and shock. Kriebel suffered a cut of the lower lip and bruises of the body and right hand. Both were released after treatment at the hospital.

Cresco Boy, 15, Hurt In Accident

STROUDSBURG — Thomas Niering Jr., 15, of Cresco, was admitted to the General Hospital of Monroe County Sunday night following a one car accident on Rt. 209 three miles west of Stroudsburg.

Niering's condition was listed as good. He is being treated for chest injuries.

State Police from Stroudsburg barracks investigated the accident at 11:10 p.m. They said the driver, Harold J. Ladner, 22, of White Haven, RD 1, was traveling east in the rain and his car skidded on the wet pavement, went off the right side, sideswiped a tree and crashed head-on into a utility pole.

British Aides Go To Talks

LONDON (AP) — The father of Britain's H-bomb will accompany Science Minister Lord Hailsham next week to the Big Three negotiations in Moscow on ending nuclear weapon tests, the Foreign Office reported Monday.

Rooney Joins COP On Bar Politicos Vote

HARRISBURG — State Senator Fred B. Rooney, Democratic candidate for the 15th Congressional seat in the July 30 special election, yesterday crossed party lines to join Republicans in voting to bar politicians from holding stock in Pennsylvania harness racing tracks.

Rooney issued the following statement:

"It seems imperative to me that every possible implication of political influence be removed from harness racing in our state.

"We cannot run the risk that racing will become a political football used for the eventual financial gain of either political party, or its members.

In Best Interest

"For this reason, I feel that Senate Bill 79 is in the best interest of all Pennsylvania citizens as well as the people of my own district."

Final passage of the bill came on a vote of 29 to 17.

Heavy pressure was put on Democratic senators by politicians with harness racing interests in the Philadelphia area to vote against the bill.

Rooney represents Northampton County in the state senate.

Inquest Set In Accident Killing Four

STROUDSBURG — An inquest into the fatal collision involving a bread truck driven by Drew L. Welsh of Drums, Pa., and a car driven by Edward R. Marx of Cementon, will be held Friday at 4 p.m. in courtroom two of the Monroe County Courthouse.

Daniel G. Warner, deputy coroner for Monroe County announced last night.

The accident occurred on Rt. 209, 200 ft. south of the Pocomo Lodge on Friday, July 5. Killed were Edward R. Marx, 31, of Cementon; Edward Marx Jr., his son; Mrs. Catherine Boker Cesanek and Mrs. Mary Ann Marx.

The conditions of those injured and still confined at the General Hospital of Monroe County are: Michael Cesanek, 55, of Northampton, critical; Elizabeth Cesanek, 8, also of Northampton, good; and David Michael Marx, 10 months, of Cementon, fair.

Crowe Named To Bartlett Unit

BETHLEHEM — Montgomery F. Crowe of Stroudsburg has been named to the Bartlett to Congress Committee, representing all sections of Carbon, Monroe, Pike, and Northampton Counties, the committee chairman announced yesterday.

The chairman is Vincent J. "Pat" Pazzetti, Jr., 73, retired manager of Bethlehem Steel plant in Bethlehem, and former All-American football player for Lehigh University in 1912.

Besides Crowe, those newly named to the committee are Mrs. Frances Chase of Palmer Township, Mrs. F. F. Couch of Bethlehem, Mrs. William J. Daub of Easton, Francis W. Goodwin of Bethlehem, Dr. George Greenwood of Bethlehem, Prof. Leon J. McGeady of Lafayette College and Dr. James Whildin of Bethlehem.

Pazzetti explained the additional members will supplement those already named to the Bartlett Committee and "demonstrate the tremendous enthusiasm engendered by our candidate in all four counties."

Pazzetti stressed that committee members are cooperating with and are supplemented by numerous citizens organizations now forming "Neighbors for Bartlett" clubs throughout the district.

"These clubs," Pazzetti said, "are spontaneous organizations prompted by our candidate and by the earnest desire of these people (The committee members) for responsible representation in Washington."

"Yeoman Work"

The various city committees also came under comment by Pazzetti who said "They are all doing yeoman work in this campaign and, as any student of politics knows, it is the volunteer workers who spell the difference in a campaign of this type."

Pazzetti noted that national publicity has already been focused upon the 15th Congressional District race, citing a number of national publications which have devoted space to coverage of this election. "This election," he said, "will be considered as a barometer in determining the popularity of the Kennedy Administration."

"In two other tests this year the Administration has taken some pretty hard knocks," he said. This was in reference to Congressional races in two California districts where Republicans piled up impressive victories in predominantly Democrat districts.

Rt. 80 Section Traffic Rerouted

STROUDSBURG — The southbound lane of the ramp at the intersection of Rt. 80 and Rt. 611 two miles north of Stroudsburg will be closed only until about July 20, William Winkler, regional district 5 highways officer said yesterday in Stroudsburg.

Winkler said barricades were put up yesterday at 11:30 a.m. and that traffic flow which was routed down Rt. 611 to Stroudsburg was "very heavy around noon."

The southbound lane is barricaded to permit removing of the ramp so a section of Rt. 80 can be hooked into the completed section at the ramp. The new section stretches four miles to Bartonsville.

When the tie-up is completed, the southbound lane of Rt. 80 from Scotrun to the New Jersey border, with a portion running through Stroudsburg, will be open to the public.

To Close Two Days

The northbound lane of the ramp which brings traffic from Rt. 80 onto 611 will then be closed at the very end of the construction deadline and remain closed for two days. Traffic will be rerouted at the Main St. interchange of Rt. 80, Winkler said.

After the northbound lane is hooked up with the new section, traffic will be able to travel from New Jersey to Scotrun without interruption.

Supervisors Sent Letters On Planning

STROUDSBURG — Atty. Alex Bensinger, president of the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce, who is acting to set up a County Planning Commission, has issued a letter to all Monroe township boards of supervisors.

The full text of the letter follows:

You will recall on past occasions the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce has been interested in promoting the idea of community planning so as to anticipate land use problems that are certain to arise in our fast changing Monroe County. We believe that our direct knowledge of the subject, that the residents of the County will be best served by making active a County Planning Commission cooperating with Township and Borough planning and zoning commissions in carrying this forward.

In the past we have attempted to develop educational programs as to the need for community planning. We should like to offer to you again, the opportunity of learning more about this complex and sometimes controversial subject.

We want to make known to you our endorsement for community planning and to ask if there is anything we can do to assist the township supervisors along these lines. Specifically, we can offer speakers at your gatherings or at an official meeting and supply general information, or the source of the information.

We would very much like to hear from each supervisor as to the feeling in his respective community and as to his own personal views regarding community planning.

Alex L. Bensinger, President

Last Paving Today

The plan is supposed to be completed sometime in August, Winkler said, and he added that "the section work to Bartonsville is going great guns from what I can see. The last 1600-foot paving job will be done Tuesday (today), and all that will be left is the installation of guard rails and paved shoulders."

Winkler said that he doesn't expect traffic to get tied up in being rerouted through Stroudsburg. The southbound lane will be closed for only 12 days and the northbound lane for two days.

Grenadiers Meet Tonight

STROUDSBURG — The Keystone Grenadiers Drum and Bugle Corps will meet tonight at 6 at the American Legion Home for the parade in Tobyhanna.

There will be a practice Wednesday night at the Acme lot at 7 p.m. A business meeting will follow the practice.

Railroad Union Suicide

Rejection by the railroad unions of a government plan to resume negotiations on elimination of 40,000 firemen's jobs through attrition is the last in a series of suicidal actions they have taken.

They have rejected the Supreme Court decision which upheld the railroad management's right to eliminate unnecessary jobs — called "featherbedding."

They have rejected recommendations for settlement made by two presidential emergency boards and by Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz. And now they have rejected Wirtz's latest proposal for attrition rather than elimination of the 40,000 jobs the railroads say are not needed.

They have threatened a nation-wide strike Thursday at 12:01 a.m. if the railroads start eliminating the 40,000 jobs at that time.

Their latest move has subjected the railroad unions and indirectly all unions to legislation by Congress which will prevent a walkout endangering the nation's economy. They opposed "compulsory arbitration" but are headed for compulsory legislation.

If the railroad unions are unwilling to give some ground on an issue where all the cards are stacked against them and all government agencies disagree with them, they must be prepared to suffer the consequences of their suicide.

They will probably lose the 40,000 jobs eventually anyway. And they will lose another little bit of private collective bargaining freedom to the federal government.

Eating Outdoors

The Stroudsburg Board of Health and its health officer are using the borough's public eating and drinking ordinance to forbid serving food on the terrace of the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

Article IV, section 4 of the ordinance does state that:

"All doors, windows and other openings of any public eating or drinking place, food or food products establishment, shall be provided with screens or netting so constructed and maintained so as to prevent the ingress of flies, other insects and animals."

The action which closed the Penn-Stroud Main St. terrace came after food and drinks had been served for two years without creating a health danger or nuisance. The reasons for the sudden discovery of health ordinance infraction are not entirely clear, but it is clear that such outdoor food service is prohibited by the letter of the law.

We are sure that the spirit of the law is protection of the public health and not prohibition of food service in a clean and pleasant place. The health officer is following the letter of the law and should not be asked to make special exceptions for special cases.

The best solution for the board of health, the borough council and places like the Penn-Stroud appears to be amendment of the ordinance as it now stands.

Since the health board and the health officer are best informed about the borough's health problems, perhaps they should sit down with the council and work out an amendment. The responsibility for change rests with the council.

The purpose of health laws should not be unnecessary restriction of healthy activities. The present law is unnecessarily rigid. A minor change would make Stroudsburg a nicer place to visit and to live in.

Unanswered Questions

Washington — The lovely and vivacious Lee Udall, wife of Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall, was keynote speaker at the National Convention of the Future Homemakers of America today (Monday). I can never be a future homemaker—not with my past—but I would sure like to know the answers to some of the questions Mrs. Udall placed before the futuristic assemblage.

I was especially intrigued because I thought all the words in the Udall family belonged to the Secretary.

Every time I ever asked Mrs. Udall anything more searching than "How do you do?" she always replied, "You'll have to ask Stu about that."

But she entered herself in this futuristic event and confided to the 1,500 future homemakers that she used to be headstrong.

This put her out of my class because at no time was I ever strong in the head. Then she revealed that over the period of a year she wrote down some of the most perplexing questions put to her by her six-year-old son, Dennis, as she went about her past, present, but not yet future, homemaking.

Mrs. Udall listed young Dennis' more baffling queries as:

"Why didn't God make all people rich?"

"What does 'people are born equal' mean?"

"Are teachers more important than mothers?"

"Who is more important—President Kennedy or Mona Lisa?"

Disappointingly to me—and I presume to the future homemakers—Mrs. Udall apparently had no answers, either for them or her offspring. She may go her way from the homemakers' future in Kansas City, happy and carefree as a lark, but she left me to brood.

Those questions that young Dennis put to her, and which she disposed of merely by repeating them, are going to keep nagging at me. She has condemned me to a future so torn that if I make a future home it will be for manic-depressives.

I expect that I will never cease moping over the question, "Why didn't God make all people rich?" Any time I suspect others of solvency I will go into black depression. It isn't that I'm envious, you understand. I just wish it was me that was rich, not them.

I don't know that I care so much about not being born equal. But I don't know why I couldn't have stayed that way. I tried to earn myself inequality. I think it's an un-American plot to keep me one of the crowd.

"Are teachers more important than mothers?" What malevolent devil could get into a six-year-old boy to make him ask his mother a thing like that? An ordinarily aware lad should know which is most important. Does he have to hold up fingers, or make other cabalistic signs, in order to withdraw from the presence of his mother?

The chances are I may never cease fretting over who is more important, President Kennedy or Mona Lisa. I wouldn't be surprised if acute melancholia beset me to the answer, I marvel, however, that the wife of a cabinet officer, beholden for her daily bread to President Kennedy, didn't try to fake some kind of reply that would have gotten young Dennis off the subject.

"Who is more important—President Kennedy or Mona Lisa?" As I sit here drooping, the faintest glimmer of an answer seems to be filtering through.

How's this for an answer to throw in the teeth of Master Dennis Udall:

"The Mona Lisa was allowed back in France, but President Kennedy wasn't."

The Defense Department has standardized everything from the TFX to bloomers, butcher smocks and belt buckles, but it now has to wrestle with a new problem in unstandardization.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy Kenneth E. Belieu (a retired Army Colonel, believe it or not) reveals that the sea service is sorely upset because it has just been furnished Army mattresses.

Five reasons which challenge the imagination. Navy mattresses are six inches wider than Army mattresses.

True Politician

By Mason Denison

The Pennsylvania Story

Watered School Bill

of top educators and laymen.

Even Act 561, tough and strict as it was in its final form did not embody many of the hard-headed recommendations of the Committee which had looked at the education problem facing the Keystone State with a cold, unjaundiced eye on the facts and future needs front.

It proved to be too much of a politician's nightmare. Perhaps no single piece of legislation has ever gained the fanfare and pizzazz accorded the school district reorganization act of 1961, that never even got off the ground for anything approaching a full-blooded start—before being literally scratched off the statute books!

The inescapable fact is that Act 561 will go down as a "Democratic measure" simply because it was enacted during a Democratic (Lawrence) Administration while the present education bogey bill will go down as a "Republican measure" on the record books.

Nothing other than time will ever tell the tale as to which piece of legislation can ever be classified as the "best."

Curiously enough, Act 561, while having the Democratic label, actually wasn't a Democratic piece in the true sense. It was simply the embodiment of recommendations of a non-partisan committee that "happened" to be appointed by a Democratic chief executive.

The recommendations were not those of the Democratic Governor — they were simply endorsed by him.

On the other hand and quite in contrast, what started out as the Scranton Administration's "bill of revision" insofar as Act 561 is concerned was not the work of any committee, per se, but strictly the single expression of one person, Governor Scranton himself.

The bill now before the House is not however, the full measure originally envisioned by the Governor but nevertheless still bears his personal (although somewhat qualified) seal of approval and still carries the Administration's (shredded) flag.

If the present bill becomes law (and indications are that it will) the new act can indeed be specifically referred to as the "Scranton School Act" inasmuch as it has been conceived exclusively by the Scranton Administration.

On the other hand, Act 561 never has and could not conceivably be referred to as the "Lawrence School Act" for the simple reason that neither Mr. Lawrence nor his Administration "conceived" it.

It is a strategic difference worth bearing in mind as the present legislation moves down the homestretch.

Deals With Reds

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — President Kennedy is dangling tempting trade bait before Premier Khrushchev in an effort to "arrange for a period of relative tranquility between Russia and the U.S."

"Increased trade and economic contacts" are being offered the Soviet ruler in exchange for an easing of the cold war and an agreement to ban nuclear weapons tests in the atmosphere and underwater.

This new extraordinary diplomatic maneuver was broached in one of the President's increasingly frequent letters to Khrushchev. The correspondence between them is one of the most unique, little-known and far-reaching aspects of the President's foreign policy.

This profoundly important new type of summitry, first revealed by this column last February, now involves an exchange of over 30 letters, all dealing with U.S.-Soviet relations.

In the trade proffer, the President pointed out that the easing of tensions could clear the way for him to authorize the sale of many products now barred from sale to Russia.

While no specific items were cited by the President, he has significantly empowered Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman to discuss the sale of large quantities of surplus from commodities should Khrushchev indicate interest in the President's plan.

Freeman is leaving this week for a month's tour of the Soviet and satellite countries.

Opening The Gate—To demonstrate that he is serious about increasing trade with Russia, the President has directed the Commerce Department to speed up the issuance of export licenses to shippers with orders from the Reds.

There has been no public announcement of this action.

In one controversial case, the White House ordered approval of a license for the export 25,000 tons of highly processed petroleum coke.

This exceptionally critical material, of utmost importance in atomic reactors, was the first shipped to Russia since the embargo on strategic goods was imposed at the outbreak of the Korean war.

The new relaxed trade policy of the President is clearly spelled out in a backstage memorandum titled "Economic Policy Toward Russia and the Communist Bloc."

Circulated among the top administration policy-makers, it states:

"U.S. economic policy toward Russia and the Soviet bloc in Europe should be a function of the general policy to attract those countries into a closer association with a strong free-world community. The U.S. should, so far as is practicable, encourage expanded economic trade and contacts between the U.S. and Russia, and constructive Russian-Soviet bloc participation in international economic organizations."

Ironically, the President's trade lure to the Kremlin comes at a time when the Common Market is considering momentous overtures of its own to Moscow and the Soviet bloc.

During the President's European trip, he learned that the six Common Market members, with West Germany taking the lead, are preparing to cut tariffs on a number of imports from the Iron Curtain.

West German businessmen are particularly active in the move. Members of the President's party were told the aim is to boost Soviet bloc trade from $2.5 billion a year to over $4 billion by the end of 1964.

Looking Forward—In addition to endeavoring to negotiate an informal detente with Russia, the President's closely-guarded exchange of letters with Khrushchev is designed to lay the ground for a summit meeting in the fall. Other objectives, as listed in a top-level policy paper, are to (1) "Convey to Moscow a clearer understanding of our intentions . . . so as to avoid or minimize future crises promoted or exploited by the Soviet Union; (2) work out over the longer run tacit understandings with the Soviet as to the ground rules governing our competition throughout the world; and (3) close out any crises as quickly as possible . . ."

Secretary Dean Rusk will be a surprise witness for President Kennedy's civil rights program. He will testify before the Senate Commerce Committee on the "impact racial difficulties are having on U.S. foreign policy abroad."

Rusk will relate some of the talks he had with European leaders during the President's recent trip.

UN Secretary General U Thant is sending Dr. Ralph Bunche, his American deputy to Moscow for impending nuclear test ban negotiations. Bunche will act as an observer unless invited to sit in on the talks—which is unlikely . . .

On orders from the White House, Secretary Rusk is setting up a new position in the State Department with the designation "Special Assistant for Minority Affairs." The purpose is to advise U.S. diplomats on how to discuss "racial problems" with foreign officials.

Speaking Of Your Health:

I Think I've Got Ptomaine

Have you ever had severe symptoms of stomach upset following a dinner party at a restaurant? Did you rush to the phone to check on one or more of the guests to find out if they, too, were ill?

The conversation usually goes like this:

"I'm so sick! What did you order, the shrimp or the leg of lamb? I think I've got ptomaine poisoning."

The term "ptomaine poisoning" is incorrectly applied to food poisoning.

It was once thought that ptomaines, the substances found in putridified food, were the offending agents in food poisoning. Our newer medical knowledge reveals that it is not the ptomaines, but the toxins of the staphylococcus bacteria that usually cause food poisoning.

The proper refrigeration of food is the greatest preventative against food poisoning. When refrigeration is not available, fresh foods should be used for each meal.

One word of caution:

In warm weather, especially, desserts that contain custard and salads made with mayonnaise dressing deteriorate rapidly and can cause serious gastric upsets. It is wise to remember to keep these particular foods in the refrigerator until just before serving.

Most restaurants are aware of this potential danger, but if you suspect that these foods have not been adequately refrigerated, it is best to avoid them.

The tolerance for spoiled food varies with the individual. One person may get food poisoning from something that does not affect another person.

Housewives often ponder over the problem of whether a particular food is spoiled or contaminated. The safe rule is to discard that food if there is any doubt at all.

HAZARDS OF GLASS DOORS

Modern architecture tends to substitute glass for the traditional wooden doors in stores and office buildings.

Admittedly, it is very attractive. Yet this decorative innovation has brought with it an additional safety hazard. Severe injuries to the face, the hands and legs are being reported from the records of hospitals all over the country.

To look their loveliest, glass doors are constantly polished and cleaned. This very transparency makes them almost invisible. Unsuspecting children and adults just "walk through" them, breaking the glass and causing severe lacerations and bruises.

Many Injured

In homes, too, picture windows that extend to the floor and plate glass walls have injured many guests who were not aware that a glass partition separated them from the lovely garden beyond.

For children at play these glass windows and doors are a "top priority" hazard. A protective barrier of furniture against a plate glass picture window adds safety to beauty.

Glass doors and this type of window are particularly dangerous at night, because of the many confusing reflections.

Preventive Measures

Fortunately, something is being done about this problem. Throughout the country, owners of public buildings and stores, recognizing the potential danger of these glass installations, are devising many techniques to make sure that their patrons know that a door is a door and not "thin air."

Conspicuous bands of color at eye level, large insignias or boldly-lettered firm names are some of the methods used for interrupting the all-over transparency of the heavy plate glass.

And many city ordinances now are insisting that this glass be laminated and unbreakable.

Dear Abby

Spirited Censure!

DEAR ABBY: Could you please tell me why so few Americans hang up flags on special holidays? On our street there was only one flag out on Memorial Day—ours. We are English born and America is our new home. We love it, but can't understand this about the American people. They praise America, sing the anthem, but when it comes to paying $2.40 for a flag, they hesitate. It beats me. In England, a flag flies from every house, large and small. It was the same on my daughter's street here in America. One flag—theirs. It makes me so mad I could scream.

CANAGO PARK

DEAR CANAGO: The colorful tradition of showing the flag seems to be fading in America. And it's regrettable, for my taste. But REAL patriotism doesn't have to be demonstrated. Some of the most confused un-Americans are frantic flag-wavers. We have our Colonel Blimps, too.

DEAR ABBY: I was under the impression that my husband was working seven days a week, night and day, for five months. One afternoon a young woman came to my apartment and told me that my husband had practically been living with her all that time. She said she loved him and wanted me to give him up. When my husband came home and saw her there he almost jumped out of the window. He told her in front of me that it was all over between them. She said she'd never let him go. He practically had to throw her out. I never felt so sorry for a woman in all my life. My husband has practically been living with her all that time. Mulch Piles Seen As Non-Oderous

By Jeff Cox
Daily Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Ivan T. Eckler of 1122 W. Main St., Stroudsburg, is engaged in a neighborhood feud over his mulch piles.

Hellmuth Lind of 1128 W. Main St., has complained to the Stroudsburg Borough Council that the Eckler compost piles are odiferous and a breeding ground for rats.

Eckler says the piles are nothing more than leaves and humus and corn shucks, and only one pile has some peelings from potatoes and apples and vegetables. These turn into rich humus, Eckler says.

Eckler was the first to bring a charge. He said Lind burned refuse after hours and that the burning odor was unpleasant.

Piles Inspected Sunday
The Daily Record inspected the piles Sunday. Here is the box score:

There are five piles. One has leaves, the second has pine needles, the third is humus which has been there for two years, the fourth is corn stubble, the last is a leaf pile with some apple peelings and vegetable peelings in it.

Upon nasal inspection, none have any discernable odor. All are enclosed by fences and one is covered. All are merely organic material and none contain garbage.

Organic Gardening
Eckler believes in organic gardening, and reads Organic Gardening and Farming magazines. He also said, "I followed instructions for making these piles—instructions printed in the Green Thumb column of the Daily Record."

"If there are any rats, they live under nearby sheds and buildings," Eckler contended.

On his garden property, Eckler uses the mulch to feed and raise corn, gladioli, tomatoes, gourds, and Jerusalem artichokes. "Rodale, the editor of Organic Gardening, recommends Jerusalem artichokes," Eckler said.

Borough Ordinance
Samuel Van Gordon, Stroudsburg borough health officer, said that "we consider the mulch piles a nuisance. He (Eckler) admitted putting garbage in the piles, so they'll have to be removed."

The borough has an ordinance—436—which covers mulch piles with vegetable matter in them. It states in part:

"Garbage is the animal or vegetable wastes resulting from the handling, preparation, cooking, and consumption of foods." This means apple peelings and potato peelings, according to the definition in the ordinance.

With this definition, the ordinance says: "No person shall place any garbage . . . upon any private property within the borough, unless same is placed in a proper receptacle for collecting or an express approval is granted by the borough."

Eckler's mulch piles containing the apple peelings are not in proper containers according to the ordinance. It will be up to the Board of Health to decide the issue.

Denies Burning
Mrs. Helmut Lind of 1128 West Main St., whose husband filed a complaint against Eckler, yesterday answered charges by Eckler that the Linds were burning garbage. Eckler had said the only bad odor in the neighborhood came from their garbage, not his mulch piles.

"I do not burn any garbage at any hour," Mrs. Lind said. Eckler had said the Linds also burned garbage "after hours."

"We take our garbage to the dump," she said.

Mrs. Lind also charged that there are "50 or 15 rats breeding from his debris. He has a roomful of leaves collected from every house when he mows lawns.

'Y' Camp
Features 4 Trips

STROUDSBURG — YMCA Day Camp completed its first week of camp at Saylorsburg. Highlights were trips to Big Pocono, Pheasant Farm of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Latzko; Fish Hatchery owned by Merrill Reddinger in Cherry Valley, and a visit at the Barrett YMCA.

Competition proved keen with the Barrett Y winning at soft ball and archery and Stroudsburg winning the kick ball and elementary game contests.

Parents were urged to sign up for the remaining camp periods starting July 15. The second period will feature a trip to Bushkill Falls, the Ice-A-Rama.

The overnight journey will be to Valley Forge.

Beauty On Wheels For Hospitalized

New London, Conn. (AP) — What can you send a hospitalized friend or relative who already has so many flowers, is on a restricted diet and, doesn't care much for reading?

The problem has been solved at Lawrence Memorial Hospital here. Gift certificates for the "Glamor Wagon" can be obtained for both men and women, whether bedridden or up and about.

The newly instituted roving beauty salon is summoned by a doctor or nurse at the request of a patient, for services ranging from hair coloring, permanent waves and manicures for the women to scalp treatments and shampoos for the men.

Naturally, young mothers in the maternity ward are avid fans of the beauty salon. They feel that when Daddy comes for a peek at his newest tax deduction (that Mommy should look her best).

Before the beauty program was allowed to get under way at Lawrence Memorial, the two operators were given an orientation course in hospital ethics, routines and special care for bedridden patients.

Now Mrs. Alida J. Allgood of Waterford — who is in charge of the facility — and her assistant, Mrs. Barbara Badell of Nanticoke, can give beauty care to people who have had eye ailments, cardiac conditions or are in traction.

"We can give a shampoo without lifting the head of a patient," Not only does the program provide more attractive patients but it also is hailed by hospital physicians as a possibility in more rapidly effecting the cure of some patients.

"After all, a person who looks better generally feels better," said one.

Patient reaction is favorable among all ages. One elderly woman being wheeled past the salon peered inside, then looked up at the nurse and asked, "How can I get in there?"

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Tuesday, July 9, 1963 (Aries) — Be reconciled to brethren, estranged associates. Extremes, prejudice, aggravations, anxieties, stress not wanted. But extra praise and enthusiasm boost higher even the best morale.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Favorable Venus promotes normal and extraordinary attainment, and especially artistic and intellectual education. Fine for finishing touch, strategem, dexterity.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Some switching around, watering tendencies. Prudence, your agility and stay with the trying tasks with all the practicality you can muster (should be distinguished coming from you).

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Growing stronger benefic aspects command your ingenuity, skill and finesse to take the reins. Know the full meaning of rewards expected, and do not go beyond the reasonable.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Some of today may be "up in the air," much of it will turn out as you direct. Useful hobbies of the past may assist, rewards to your abilities now. Keep everything authentic.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Do not overthrow a workable device or method for something new unless the new has definite improvement qualities. Improve, to protect, your tact can forestall others.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Certain changes taking place faster than many realize. Be in on the advancements... there are many. Teachers, research, testing, backing progress generally gain fresh awards.

October 24 to November 23 (Scorpio) — Yours among the few outstandingly favorable planets to stay. Press for sound objectives; focus on targets cautiously. Warm up, take aim deliberately. Ask encompassing questions.

November 24 to December 23 (Sagittarius) — "Beauty is as beauty does," we see it every day. The heart, mind, and soul speak first, and win or lose objectives on their own merit. Mix today's technique prudently.

December 24 to January 23 (Capricorn) — Observe all types of influences; don't rush into rearranging, rewards, uninvestigated investments. Permit extra kinder indulgence for children, students, the unfortunate.

January 24 to February 23 (Aquarius) — "Settling down" effect could become a dragging of the feet if you are not mindful. This day's aspects are stronger for you to make progress than for many — take the hint.

February 24 to March 23 (Pisces) — Increasingly potent for training, known and thoroughly studied matters, for a new-type attempt at an old project or change. Be not deluded by false fronts or behavior.

YOU BORN TODAY? Right in the middle of the deep-thinking, affectionate, protective, tenacious Cancer, A Zodiacal Sign of some rare abilities, and so much charm that sometimes you gain access and turn decisions without yourself knowing how others came to accept your judgment. Mind not to overwhelm with persistence, for though you mean sincerely to keep things harmonious and orderly, you may also bound your permissive limits without realizing it. Many opportunities ahead for your HIGHER imagination, free from anxieties. Your mind sees possibilities some people miss, so take the wheel, and go forward in the small and big ways you find open, and which you open up for yourself. Don't be conservative to being penny wise and pound foolish. One needs to make whether of talents or other resources. Help keep domestic environment cheerful, let little errors go, unless they are often. It brings better endeavor from all. Control your sympathies; include artistic inclinations; next few months require them. Birthdate of Elias Howe, inventor sewing machine; Dorothy Thompson, journalist; Henry Hallam, historian.

THEY'LL DO IT EVERY TIME

Delaware Water Gap

Mrs. Thomas Brodhead (Edna Transue) former Postmaster here has been visiting Mayor and Mrs. Arthur Lehr for a week. She is accompanied by her sister Mrs. Mary Dolin. The couple left Friday to go to New York state to visit Mrs. Brodhead's steps on Kingsley Brodhead. They had previously visited relatives in New Jersey. They may stop in Water Gap briefly on their way back to Florida next week. They have been entertained at dinner each day by different old friends and have been able to chat with quite a few of their former acquaintances.

Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Kaiser and daughters Roxanne and Gwendolyn, Mr. and Mrs. William Widoss and daughters Carol, Linda and Diane spent the past weekend at Atlantic City where they escaped the heavy rain we had here.

Rev. and Mrs. Harold Mohr came from Palo Alto, California in May to their bungalow, Mohr Crest, but the minister who is an executive officer in the Methodist Church, has been busy and away much of the time. He had a four week session of "Month of Missions" in New Jersey churches. He has had conferences in Indiana, Ohio and Western Pennsylvania. Now he expects to rest and enjoy the beauty of his Minnsi Mountain home for the rest of the summer.

Picnic guests, Thursday, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Jones of Mountain Road were Mr. John Jones, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Heffelfinger, Mr. Fritz Houseman, all of Allentown.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Haymer, Sr. have been entertaining their son-in-law and daughter and grandchildren, Mr. and Mrs. John Quinn, Cynthia, Oscar, Fred, and Valerie Quinn from St. Regis Falls, N. Y., for a week. They went out to Memorial Park the afternoon of July 4 and found it so crowded that it was impossible to find a free table or to move about much. Town folk and summer guests were taking advantage of the reviving weather to enjoy the beautiful spot.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Richter and son William and twelve-year-old daughter Linda Richter have moved from Valley Stream, L. I., N. Y., to the bungalow on Walnut Lane which formerly belonged to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Morton. Mr. Richter is employed at Jolley's Auto Exchange in Stroudsburg. William is spending much time with his grandparents at Marshalls Creek.

Mr. and Mrs. Myron Snyder returned home Thursday from a two week tour of Florida.

Guests of Clarence Arnold Thursday were Mrs. Laura David of Elmira N. Y., Mrs. Mary Rought of Fleetville, Mrs. Susan Kern, Mrs. Clara Watson, Mrs. Emma Dougherty, and Harry Koback of Scranton.

The Police and Personnel committee will meet at 7 p.m. The supply and athletics committee will meet at 7:30 pm and the authority and joint board will meet at 7:30 p.m.

College Mat Clinic Opens

By KEN O'BRIEN
Daily Record Sports Editor
EAST STROUDSBURG — More than 100 high school and college youths representing three states and the District of Columbia yesterday began the first day of special instruction in the first annual Pocono Wrestling Clinic at East Stroudsburg State College.

Directed by Clyde (Red) Witman, ESSC head wrestling coach, the staff includes collegiate coaches Jimmy Miller of Cornell and Ed Perry of the U. S. Naval Academy.

Scholastic coaches on the staff include John Johnston of Stevens Trade School, Russ Riegel of Hunterdon Central, Thad Turner of Phillipsburg, N. J., Chris Po of Nesheim, and Al Zarbatany of Wilson Boro.

"These men," said Witman, "have not only been fine wrestlers, but have produced fine teams as well. They know how to impart their knowledge to others."

The clinic is PIAA-approved and is run according to PIAA and NCAA regulations. The staff will be emphasizing individual instruction during the week's activities.

Local high school representatives include Larry Pope, John Armato, Bob White and Frank Cocco of Stroud Union; Bob Naiman and Ricky Leaman of East Stroudsburg, and Tom Grainger of Pocono Mountain.

"We're teaching basic fundamentals of holds and techniques," Witman explained, "in the way the sport is presently leaning."

"Present Trend"

"Our wrestling style is currently leaning toward international wrestling, but at the same time international wrestling is leaning more and more toward our style. We're keeping up with the present trend at this clinic."

Much of the emphasis at this clinic is being placed on the pin, or fall. Reason for this, according to Witman, is that next year colleges will be wrestling under the new one-second pin instead of the two-second requirement.

"Strength is another factor we're stressing," Witman added. "Coaches today are trying to develop real horse-power in their wrestlers because they have come to realize the successful wrestler must possess a combination of strength and finesse."

Since this is the first wrestling clinic at ESSC, it was originally conceived to maintain it strictly on a local basis. But the idea proved more popular to a much wider area than originally anticipated. Thus, Witman already has inaugurated plans for a larger session next year.

"Elevate Wrestling"

"We're attempting to elevate wrestling in our area," Witman declared, "and that is the primary purpose of this clinic — to develop better wrestlers and thus develop more interest in the sport at the same time."

Among the basic fundamentals being taught by the instructors are take-downs, counter-take-downs, cross leverage, position and movement on mat, rolls, standups, sit-outs, counter-rolls, counters, for overhooks, pinning combinations and use of cradles and breaks.

There also are periodic sessions for offensive and defensive drills. Final session of the clinic will be held Friday at 2 p.m.

Eagles, VFW And Exchange Win Babe Ruth League Tilts

STROUDSBURG—Eagles 1106 uncoiled a fierce 14-hit attack to demolish Line Material, 25-5, while VFW trimmed Crowe, 9-7, and Exchange Club whipped IBW, 6-3, in Monroe County Babe Ruth League contests yesterday.

The Eagles, who couldn't do anything wrong, scored in every inning, taking a quick 7-0 lead in the first round and pouring across nine tallies in the fourth to score the rout.

VFW scored five times in the second inning and led Crowe's all the way but had to stave off a seventh inning rally by the losers who pushed over four markers before the side was retired.

The Exchange Club was forced into extra innings to gain their 6-3 verdict over IBW. In fact, the winners came from behind in the top of the regulation seventh inning to score two runs which knotted the count at 3-all and then tallied three in the top of the eighth for the victory.

Bill Goldbeck Wins Tamiment Tourney

TAMIMENT — Bill Goldbeck, retired pro, playing out of Buck Hill Falls Country Club, won low pro honors at Tamiment Golf Club with a 74 yesterday.

The oldest pro in the field shot a 2-under par 34 on the front nine, but slipped to a 40 on the tough back nine.

Ron Bakich of Lords Valley Country Club played the last three holes in 2-over-par to finish second with a 75.

Moran Wins Calloway Tournament

WATER GAP—Harold Moran shot a 71 to capture the Calloway Tournament at Water Gap Country Club and cap holiday weekend golf festivities there.

Byron Kirk and William Ungemah were second with 72s. Tied for third with 73s were Ed Force, Gene Ross and George Laubach.

In the men's flag tournament, winners were Gil Myers (21st hole, edge of the green), H. Dubanowich (20th hole, in the cup), Frank Brown (20th hole, 260 yards) and Bob Breslin (20th hole, 250 yards). Ladies division winners were Nancy Pierson (20th hole, 15 feet from cup) and M. L. Breslin (19th hole, fairway).

Richard Pulley and Marge Gyrurk were putting contest winners. Runners-up were Donald Davis and Mary Lou Brenlin.

Six tied for top honors in the kickers tourney with 72s. They were Ed Mahon, C. B. Pierson, John Saunders, Gil Myers, Nancy Pierson and Joe Alfano.

Winners in the hole-in-one contest were Minna Latham, Bob Johnson and D. Fontana.

Kulp's tallied three markers in the first innings and led all the way. Shaw narrowed the gap to 4-2 in the bottom of the third, but the winners went on to score two in the fifth, one in the sixth and four more in the seventh to complete the rout.

Vince Yanovitch, Tamiment pro; Sam Kinder, and Ted Bickel Jr. shot 76s. All three had putting trouble which cost them a first place tie.

First team low gross with a 70 was Sam Kinder and Bob Abbott of Water Gap Country Club. Ted Bickel Jr., Harkers Hollow Country Club, and three of his partners, Charley Giordano, Earl Stewart, and Mike Kravetz were second with 71s.

In the low net division, first prize was won by Ted Bickel and Charley Giordano with a 65. Three teams tied for second—Bill Eben and Mike McGorry of Allentown Municipal Golf Club; Joe Hock, also of Allentown, and Mike Gordon and Yanovitch and Ray Steele, former professional baseball pitcher with Kansas City, with 66.

Low amateur for the tournament was Tars Ford and Ed Haney with 74 gross score.

Major League Attendance Is Slumping

NEW YORK (AP) — Twelve teams, including the pace setting Los Angeles Dodgers and the New York Yankees, show declines in major league attendance at the midway point of the 1963 baseball season.

TWINS, BUT NOT IDENTICAL

We can't even tell them apart by looking. But there is one vital difference. The all new Mercedes-Benz 190 sedan on top is powered by a gasoline engine. Below, the 190 D sedan powered by a diesel engine. Both are the last word in luxury with exceptional economy and very low maintenance. You have a choice of gasoline power or the unrivaled economy of a diesel engine.

Bill Deihl's Tire Store Changes Stores Policy To New Discount System

Bill Deihl's Tire Store, at 13-15 South 7th St., Stroudsburg, has adapted a new discount policy effective immediately. Owner, Bill Deihl, stated, "The new policy means virtually every product in the store will be reduced to prices comparable to big city discount houses."

This includes all auto accessories, tires, batteries and merchandise in the automotive line, camera equipment, bicycles, tools, wheel goods, appliances, sporting goods, lawn & garden supplies & furniture, and many other items in the store.

The new system, a National trend, has been in effect in larger cities for the past few years. Bill Deihl is the first store in its line in Stroudsburg to undertake this substantial reduction of price move.

It means that residents of the Poconos may now purchase items locally for far less off on some items without any reduction of quality. Periodic newspaper and other advertisements will carry specials even further reducing those items found advantageous to reduce at the time.

The new system has been undertaken to enable local shoppers to receive the bargains they hear about in the larger metropolitan cities. Through the use of this policy, it is hoped, local buyers will be able to purchase more for even less by saving the cost of travel to other larger shopping centers out of town where previously the only discount centers existed.
